Poor outing in York today

I went fishing on two separate streams in York county today that both hold a healthy population of wild brown trout. I thought it would be a great day considering the weather and the cooler water temperatures but I was pretty disappointed. I started off around 7 am and ended around 12 pm only catching 3 trout (2 wild browns and a stocker rainbow). There were trout in every hole that I came across but they just stuck to the bottom and seemed lethargic. Nothing was feeding and they didn't spook too easily either. So I guess where I'm going with all of this is what gives? They can't be spawning already right?
