

Subject: : Beginner Forum

Topic: : Poor outing in York today

Re: Poor outing in York today

Author: : Fishidiot

Date: : 2013/9/14 18:58:03

URL:

Quote:

HopBack wrote:

So I guess where I'm going with all of this is what gives? They can't be spawning already right?

Hop,

It's highly unlikely that they're spawning yet. Wild browns in PA spawn in Nov as a general rule.

Late summer- early autumn fishing for wild browns can be sketchy. The fish are often cautious and water can be low and clear. All things considered, I'd say you had a pretty good day. Take some time to review in your mind how you caught the fish you did: What were the conditions they had in common? Were the fish deep or shallow? Did you get them high or low in the water column? Pools or riffles? Which flies produced and which didn't?

This is all part of the challenge and fun of fly fishing - putting together the pieces of the puzzle.