Stony is tough. Relies mostly on stocked fish, though there is a small amount of natural repro. I have had many experiences similar to yours. I love the seclusion and beauty, but I have spent many hours pounding beautiful holding spots with no luck at all. If you don't hit the spots where they stocked, it can be a lot of waving a stick in the air for nothin. The times when you do find them though makes for a nice reward for all the hard work.
