I caught one on an elk hair caddis, one on a prince nymph, and one on a woolly bugger. Each trout was in a different type of water as well i.e. riffles, deep water, and a slow stretch. All the trout I saw were laying very close to the bottom and often times mixed in with suckers and would barely move when you walked up on them. The water temp probably fluctuated a lot his week and it was very clear, although the flow I feel was pretty decent for this time of year.
