Was heading back from SW PA when I decided to stop at Yellow Creek.

Arrived, chatted a few minutes with a gentleman on his way out. Said it was slow.

Fished the boy scout hole with a black bugger and caught a small rainbow but that was it. I headed upstream to the broken water and noticed a good hatch of small caddis coming off. Tied on a size 16 tan caddis and started catching small wild browns.

Missed a bunch but ended the day with a bout 7 fish. Seems the fish are keying in on caddis in many central Pa streams. Had similar experiences the last several weeks at Spring Creek.
