In 30+ years of fly fishing, never had one in my box or on my line. I refuse to "give up" and put on a fly that matches nothing but as someone suggested....represents everything. Wouldn't it be more satisfying to trick a fish on a pattern that mimics a food source? IMO, fishing a GW is like admitting you can't catch on a standard pattern or you don't have enough knowledge to know what to use. If some find that offensive, sorry.
