Since I had my shoulder done on the 4th, I can't fish for a while. Sunday morning was perfect. There was no way I could stay in so I went, without equipment, to one of the creeks I fish.

I found there's a lot to be said for just walking and watching. I was able and perfectly content to only watch the trout holding, rising, moving to different spots. I felt no pressure to catch, or try to catch.

I also spent a good deal of my time just in the woods along the creek. I've always admired the walking sticks that you see at flea markets and and I picked a few branches to dry out to attempt to produce one this winter.
