Yea what surfcowboy said. One thing a guide in Martha's Vineyard told me is the gear for albies and blues need to be very good. By this I mean a good reel and decent rod with a smooth drag system. Stripers are not going to make the runs that are going to put you in you backing in five seconds. Not that they can't put you in you backing quickly. They just move slower. This is one of the reasons why I love blues. They don't give up and have so much power for there size.
