wow. that is some brookie.

were you fishing the side seams or dragging the bottom ? - i never quite know how to approach high water small streams.

That fish was caught in front of a big woody debris pile, that basically dammed the stream. It formed a pool with a split in the middle. After fishing the right side, I switched to the left, and fishing downstream, something I don't like to do, I was dropping the fly onto the water, with just the leader out of the tip top. All fish caught on a yellow #12 stimulator.
