I agree that its hard to believe a 0.50 fly would be quality, let alone a bead head. I was curious so I took a peek at the site. While I'm sure they catch fish, there are some weird looking flies on that site. I would think the better flies would have been photographed.

I wonder what the price point is for a good quality fly. I never bought them regularly. I starting tying from day one. I came into this sport backwards. It was my interest in tying that drove me into FF.

Beginners, do not tie patterns as shown there.
