Been a long time since I fished that pond.

There's a small parking area just off the road, but you can't see it through the tree line.

It's about a quarter mile walk to get to the pond from the parking area. There's a patch of woods that borders the NE side of the pond, and there's an elaborate wooden "boardwalk" that runs through the woods. If memory serves me correctly, that boardwalk was built by work details from the county prison system.

The pond has an open and elevated shoreline for about half it's circumference - easy access to the water, and lots of casting room. It's not very deep either.

Lots of panfish, and the occasional LMB. Easy fishing for kids, but a bit of a long walk to get to the pond.

Never saw anyone else fishing there, and never had any problems accessing it. I don't remember street names, but I do remember heading West from the main intersection in Vera Cruz to get there.

You can see this pond clearly from the NE Extension of the turnpike.
