

Subject: : Stream Reports

Topic: : LeTort Spring Run CV, PA

LeTort Spring Run CV, PA

Author: : LetortAngler

Date: : 2013/9/19 13:41:19

URL:

9-17-13. LeTort. Cold.... It was around 49 degrees when I pulled in and I saw no activity at all. It looked like all the fish were in the deeper pools, so I tryed enticing them with a white minnow and a sculpin, with a few chases but no takes. Tricos were doin pretty good for being up near Bonnybrook, but no risers. As the day got warmer I saw an incredible little olive hatch, but didn't see many risers, they were about a size 20-22. I worked my up stream and got ahead of a few trout that were feeding on something close to the bank, so I tied on a size 16 black wet ant and it drifted dead center toward his mouth as I saw it open and close I set the hook and a beautiful 12-13 inch wil brown was hooked and quickly released. I thought I was getting skunked, and am glad I got that one. Since the fishing was slow I headed to big spring. I would of took a few pics, but I only take pics if someone else is with me cause the letort browns are very fragile and should be treated with delicacy.