

---

Subject: : Tips and Tricks

Topic: : Green Weenie

Re: Green Weenie

Author: : Tups

Date: : 2013/9/19 21:00:52

URL:

<http://www.abebooks.com/servlet/BookD ... flies%2Bproven%2Bpatterns>

Haven't read this book in twenty years, but, as I recall, Lafontaine (RIP) discusses the pros and cons of using various differently colored flies at different hours of the day. He based his conclusions on a great deal of scuba-based underwater empirical observations. My recollection of his findings boils down to this: Middle of the day, fishing under a green forested canopy - fish a green fly. Late afternoon as the sun is setting and the ambient light takes on an orange glow - fish an orange or red fly.