I was there in the rain yesterday. It hasn't exactly been invaded. Those fish showed up after the bad floods this Summer. There are hybrid sunfish in the mix as well. They are most certainly washed down from a pond upstream during the flood. We've been tossing them out all Summer.

The good news: I had a buddy there a couple of weeks ago that saw a brown trout swimming up the middle of a pool with a 4" blue gill in his mouth.

Now, for the funny story. When we got there yesterday 4 guys were getting in a car. They had fly gear....what appeared to be 6wt rods. I was cracking up. That creek requires 3wt rods maximum. Leave the steelhead gear at home 😊

We had an awesome day. About 2:30 yesterday afternoon the flows and stain came up and it was game-on! It was a fantastic afternoon. Here are a couple we caught.
