I think the upside to the bluegill etc. is that it is going to push some of those 16-18" fish into the 20"+ class. When those fish slow down over the Winter, the browns are going to feast even more. We'll see. Yesterday I caught my 9th different 16"+ fish on the creek. Didn't catch any of my old friends though.

Did a little stream maintenance along the way as well. Just removed some sticks and branches from a few of the major pools.

They should really start to intensify in color here pretty soon. Not much yet, but within the next few weeks they should really get pretty. I always enjoy hanging with my little butter belly buddies this type of year.
