It would be interesting to see if the bigger fish take advantage of the new food source. I haven't caught or seen any legit 20 inchers out of there yet, but there's certainly enough habitat and now plenty of additional food for them. Even if they don't grow any longer, at least they'll be strong, fat fish!

I know it's still pretty early yet, but I kept an eye out for any early spawners. They will definitely start to color up here soon.
