Not sure what stream he's referring to, but I have a feeling a fingerling stocked stream in the NW part of the state may fit into the same category. I fished it a couple times in the fall and winter and the fingerlings were everywhere, then I fished it again about a month ago and didn't catch any, and spooked maybe 2 of the fingerlings if that. That stream doesn't need stocked to begin with though...

I'd be very interested in seeing the results of the electrofishing the PFBC did (assuming they did it already, or will do it before they stock the next batch..)
