I think I will revise my last response and just agree with Joe. I'm not a big fan of South Bend bamboo rods, so my knowledge of that brand is somewhat limited.

If it is separate wet and dry tips, that would be easy enough to measure.

The reason I am not a fan of South Bend Bamboo has to do with their ferrule design. Maybe it was just bad luck, but the third time I broke one at the ferrule on the mid by just casting is when I decided I wasn't a fan. It had to be the ferrule design, because it couldn't have been me. 😊
