

Subject: : Warm Water & Salt Water Fly-Fishing

Topic: : Late season smallmouths

Re: Late season smallmouths

Author: : Fishidiot

Date: : 2013/9/25 11:41:39

URL:

Quote:

sarce wrote:

will they still be active about three weeks from now on the smaller rivers/large creeks in central PA?

Maybe - maybe not - depends on the size of the streams you have in mind.

Smaller streams in PA that have bass during summer often don't have them in October as fish migrate out of the streams seasonally. Every creek is different and it wouldn't hurt to check the creeks in question (they may fish very well) but - if it were me - I'd focus on larger waterways or big rivers. The Susky and Juniata fish very well in October. Again, it depends. The smaller the stream, the less likely it will fish well for bass in late October.