I fished this stream a few weeks back for the first time in over a year...seemed like it was pretty loved then, but I didn't realize how much until reading this thread. Everyone must be doing alright by the fish, or there wouldn't be many left based on the attention they get.

Sunfish were everywhere...and saw the little LM bass, too. Aside from feeding the bigger browns, it would seem that alot of the spawn would get wiped out by these gangs of sunfish. Am I missing something? Seems like 30-40 2 inch bluegill sharing a pool with a few 7 inch trout will make it hard on the trout. BTW, I thought about tossing the sunnies I caught but thought it futile.
