Have not seen any warmouth (and they are pretty distinct in their features) in this creek. I have seen hybrid sunfish, which is what was pictured above with all of the purple in it. Those are for sure from a stocked pond and not from the creek below.

Pat, If you mean your earlier picture from page 1, that is not a hybrid. It is simply a bluegill from cold water. I'm thinking female.

I have had (purchased) hybrids. Most common by far is bluegill/green sunfish hybrid. and about 90% of those are makes and look quite different from that.
