Just returned from a week in O. C., NJ. Early in the week there were loads of spot in the surf. From early mid-week onward that shifted to small blues (8-12 inchers, occasional 15-16 incher) and if you happened to hit it just right legal size stripers were being caught on poppers in the surf and at Corson's inlet. Few anglers were trying for them and I doubt that the word was out. Best time seemed to be at dawn and for about an hour thereafter for the stripers, but some were even caught at noon time (at almost dead low tide). I spoke to an angler who mentioned a very good evening for sub-legal stripers and up to 8 lb blues at the Longport jetty.
