

---

Subject: : Fly Fishing Locations

Topic: : French Creek, Chester Co. St Peters

Re: French Creek, Chester Co. St Peters

Author: : afishinado

Date: : 2013/10/1 8:06:32

URL:

Quote:

fadeaway263 wrote:

Fished the section along Hollow Road from the covered bridge to the Sheeder Mill Road bridge with my son yesterday. Nothing but fall fish. This was my first time fishing French Creek and unless other sections are different I don't think I will ever fish it again. The stream bottom is so rock strewn that it may be the hardest wading stream I have ever encountered. Also the ingress egress of this section was almost impossible. Although there is a set of stairs in the parking area at the intersection of Hollow and Sheeder Mill Rds they are very very steep for an old guy like me. When we left I walked out to the middle of the covered bridge and saw a lot of trout/suckers under the bridge. The water under the bridge was 61.11 degrees.

Fade,

The FFO-CR area on French gets very warm in the summer. I wouldn't expect many or any trout to survive in that stretch. It's really a spring through early summer fishing place since it won't be stocked again by the FBC until the spring (usually late February).