Just like the Letort, the originals were brook trout like evry other stream in pa just about, but you don't really see people wanting to remove the browns ? They've adapted better and was able to give us a wonderful fishery, however I can understand wanting to make it like " the good ol'days" but can we be certain that the brooks would boom w/out the bows? How many other streams in pa have wild bows and brooks that we can somewhat learn from? Has this been done before and it was successful? Well, to my knowledge I'm not to aware of to many streams that have both wild brook and rainbows, but hopefully this will be resolved in the future
