

Subject: : Fly Fishing Locations

Topic: : Fishing the Lackawaxen River?

Re: Fishing the Lackawaxen River?

Author: : CathyG

Date: : 2013/10/3 12:03:13

URL:

In the spring the Lackawaxen is stocked from Prompton Dam to the mouth at the Delaware. In summer the water generally warms too much for trout fishing. There used to be a fall stocking but not this year. I'm sure there are some holdover trout but trout fishing might be tough. Smallmouth fishing is supposed to be pretty good but I've never tried it.

Upper Delaware access can be tricky. Most of the access is at boat launches on the PA side. There is some National Park access on the NY side above Callicoon. (A PA license is good on both shores.)