Exactly. Having caught PA wild trout fever, the available resources are guides only, and the only way to find out is to go - time on the water sometimes fruitless, sometimes amazing - they are out there, undisturbed and filled with trout. I have noticed a positive correlation between difficulty of access (distance from roads, etc.) and WT populations, but then there are those where the waters seem to be trout-free for no apparent reason, which often makes me wish I had some ph measuring device with me to see if acid rain is the culprit.
