

Subject: : Paflyfish General Forum

Topic: : Techniques for Fishing Sculpins

Techniques for Fishing Sculpins

Author: : MD_Gene

Date: : 2013/10/4 16:57:39

URL:

I think I know how sculpins swim. They lay on the bottom and go up a foot or so then sink back to the bottom. But I have questions:

- 1) Do they have a propensity to get caught in fast current get washed down and become fish food like that?
- 2) Are they dependent on the current by and large for movement?

I ask as I was fishing the fast water on he GP above Falls Rd today. I wasn't sure how to fish them in the fast deep water. At the end of the drift, do I retrieve them like any streamer, or is that a waste of time?

I did manage one last week on a sculpin but I was able to fish it in a seam across the current. Any help is appreciated.