People can stamp their feet and huff all they want, teh truth of the matter simple.

Either they can continue to under report class A water which disallows it the additional protections that may be afforded to it, or they can grant it this "special" status which allows it to be managed better but unfortantly allows stocking to continue.

You can pretend you'll fight to prove their class A or whatever, but there simply won't be manpower or resources every available to survey that section of stream leaving your hopes and dreams untouched; or you can accept this half-step and gather some protection.
