The idea of using a barrier is only worthwhile if there is a high enough barrier that rainbows can't go over it, like the dam at the lower end of the creek, and if there were a heavy fine for anyone moving fish into the "Managed" water. The barrier has to be high and straight up to block the bows, it can't be what was called a barrier before. So shock the upper water and move all the bows down below the dam, everyone will be happy. Make the stream C & R for brookies and 1 trophy bow a day above the dam.
