

---

Subject: : Paflyfish General Forum

Topic: : Brookie versus Brownie habitat ?

Re: Brookie versus Brownie habitat ?

Author: : geebee

Date: : 2013/10/9 16:25:24

URL:

but thats confusing chaz cos browns in Europe typically evolved in acidic streams - most scottish, Irish and Welsh upland streams are peat stained (hence the very smooth whiskey...)

or are you just saying that Brookies are just better in acidic realms than browns ?

and of course in most if not all european limestoners, browns were sharing or outnumbered by Grayling - which disappeared from the Michigan peninsular due to acidity and were replaced by brown trout not brookies...

?