HD,

It is a shame that some anglers insist in trashing the very resource that they pretend to love and in their selfish approach to fishing often ruins it for all of us through the resultant posting. Do not worry about the instantaneous fall harvest, however, because it is quite limited by the reluctance of many of the fish to hit. They are in spawning mode and only a limited percentage are harvested immediately. I would bet that there are plenty of fish that remain to be caught, and that they will begin to hit later this fall.
