I too have never had a big number fish day on Big Fishing. But there is something very special to me about that stream. When I close my eyes at night, I often dream of it. When I need to escape while sitting in my cubicle, I think of it. It's everything a trout stream should be. Clean, cold water cutting through rugged, dark-forested mountain narrows. The fish are wild. The hatches consistent. I guess the way to describe it for me is, enchanted. And to paraphrase Norman Maclean, I am haunted by that water.
