in the St. Lawrence river I have seen 26- 30" pike with big bite marks.....yikes. that would be fun to cast.

There was a reliable story (included photos) of a hooked, 33" muskie in the Susquehanna River about 15 years ago that was attacked and mauled by a much larger muskie as it was being reeled in by an angler. The smaller muskie, although cut up, was landed and released. The fisherman was a veteran muskie guy and he estimated the bigger fish to be about 55 inches. Although he returned many times, he never saw the biggie again.
