

---

Subject: : Paflyfish General Forum

Topic: : Brown Trout Migration in Poconos

Re: Brown Trout Migration in Poconos

Author: : Millsertime

Date: : 2013/10/15 11:38:08

URL:

Paul. I fish/live in the Pocono's. I haven't fished the local wild brown streams recently primarily due to the low water levels. I find it more difficult to catch them during low/clear water because extreme "stealthiness" is required. I've been mostly fishing the Lehigh or plunge pools loaded with brookies. I would say low clear water is the main reason you didn't catch any browns. I haven't experienced any brown migration on small Pocono wild brown streams. The last 2 Class A Pocono streams (Pocono and Cranberry Creeks) I've fished, I've only caught 1 brown each. I contribute this to low/clear water. I'm waiting for some rain before I hit up a Class A again. Shoot me a PM. We can compare notes. I'm sure I've fished the stream in question.