

Subject: : Paflyfish General Forum

Topic: : Brown Trout Migration in Poconos

Re: Brown Trout Migration in Poconos

Author: : Stenonema

Date: : 2013/10/15 12:01:37

URL:

A number of things could be happening. You may be right, they may have migrated. All others may be right as well, water clarity, they're there just tough to catch. Maybe.

That is what you gotta love about fishing. You now have a riddle to solve. I guess you have to go fishing if you are ever going to solve the riddle. Streams make the fisherman and the trout. Poconos doesn't mean that the trout won't migrate. Brown trout evolve quickly and differently in streams only miles apart. Go find'em. It's not out of the question that they have migrated. The advantage of low and clear is you can see them. Suggestion, put on some miles exploring and hunting them. You may locate the monster. Do some exploring. Have fun along the way.

I forgot you mentioned that you are fishing only a 3 mile section. Is there any way that you can get permission other areas?

Oh, and what Chaz said.