The ole' live-nymph-on-a-fly technique (which is age-old, I'm sure) reminded me of a day when my father couldn't move a pod of big browns in Wagon Tracks Pool on the Beaverkill. He threw everything at them, then threw a big stonefly nymph attached to his fly and the browns came running and he caught one of the biggest trout of his life.

Anyway, thanks a ton for the feedback. It will certainly help me in learning more about wild brown trout behavior in the Pocono area.
