Just curious so I'm going to pester you with a few questions...

What is this water you would normally skip, look like?

What would you define as "regular nymphing techniques"?

Excellent questions!

If I remember correctly, Polish nymphing is a (very) short leader style of fishing. What do you do when you need to fish farther away from yourself?

"Polish" cannot be differentiated from "Czech" so, no it does not utilize a very short leader. The Polish taught the Czechs to tight line and it has become a new fad.

Again, not picking on you just am curious as to your answers. Thanks.

Seemed sincere to me.

Seems odd to me. So guys from the US went to teh Europes to compete and got taught to tight line high stick which is something that has been done here in PA for many, many years.
