
Subject: : Conservation

Topic: : We won't see profits from Shale Gas.

We won't see profits from Shale Gas.

Author: : Chaz

Date: : 2013/10/16 12:19:06

URL:

This just in from Delaware Riverkeepers!
Who really profits?

Coming in this Wednesday's Shale Truth Interview segment, Elizabeth Stanton, senior economist with Synapse Energy discusses why a Department of Energy consultant's report claiming there will be economic benefits for the United States from building liquified natural gas export terminals is incorrect. Synapse is a consulting firm that examines energy and environmental issues. Stanton co-authored a white paper that examined a DOE consultant's report on the economic impacts of exporting shale gas.

According to Stanton profits from shale gas exports would be limited to the gas industry. Stanton also says stock ownership in the natural gas industry is not broadly shared in the United States and that most Americans would not see any earnings as the result of developing LNG export terminals.

Catch up on the entire Shale Truth Series at <http://bit.ly/ShaleTruth>

- Energy expert Arthur Berman
- Landscape restoration specialist Leslie Sauer
- Cornell University Professor Anthony Ingraffea
- Senior economist with Synapse Energy, Dr. Elizabeth Stanton

The Delaware Riverkeeper Network will present a new segment as part of this series every Wednesday at <http://bit.ly/ShaleTruth>