

Subject: : Gear Talk

Topic: : MUCILIN

Re: MUCILIN

Author: : geebee

Date: : 2013/10/16 17:49:23

URL:

Quote:

PennKev wrote:

Quote:

geebee wrote:

i think that diagram is a little simplistic - the first 10ft of a WF must weight more than a DT right ?

No they don't. The front tapers of the same brand and product line of fly lines in both DT and WF are usually are very similar if not the same.

i just checked the Rio LT range - you are right - same diameter, same 30ft weight, but the tip of the DT is 9'6" and the WF is 8'

so the taper is slightly different although the overall mass is the same.

we're kind of both right, but you're more right than me haha...