Looking for something that will mainly be used to go after SMB and Steelhead... but one that I can also use to tangle with occasional muskie or saltwater species. Is 8wt too light?

An 8wt may be a little on the heavy side for SMB & Steelhead and a little on the light side for muskie and saltwater (blues/stripers). Sounds like a good compromise. I've caught every one of these fish and many others fishing with an 8wt and none of them ever complained. Go for it.
