Im checking the yough at ohiopyle and somehow it isnt increasing at all. I saw the storms pass over that area on the radar, and I assume they got rain. The Pittsburgh area got alot, so I am wondering, did the streams in the area get water and the gauges are off, or did they really not get a drop from yesterday's rain? I wanted to fish Meadow Run and Laurel Hill tomorrow, but not if they were going to be a trickle.
