

Subject: : Conservation

Topic: : More bad news

Re: More bad news

Author: : greenghost

Date: : 2013/10/18 12:14:44

URL:

Even if global warming continues, there will be plenty of angling opportunities for us in the future. Maybe not for cold water species, but bass, carp, muskie, etc. will survive and probably thrive in warmer waters.

Just like the fish we go after, we anglers (especially fly fishermen) have been conditioned too . We believe trout are the only species worthy of our efforts. That will have to change. And I for one won't mind one bit... I like smallmouth bass fishing better anyway.