Excellent news. Of course it's too early to say things have recovered (obviously they have not) but this is good news. The YOY numbers were so-so but it's great to hear that adult bass look better than they have in awhile. Perhaps there's cause for optimism. Is the PFBC going to publish the results of this study with comparative graphing (I hope so)?

I too am hearing a lot of positive buzz from other fishermen about the lower Susky lately.
