i choose patterns mostly on how easy they are to tie... especially articulated streamers can eat up a lot of bench time. color is important. i like yellow or chartreuse on bright days and olive, brown, black on murkier days. i cycle through colors until one starts moving fish and stick with it. brown over yellow is a favorite for me if it's a two color pattern. when water levels are lower i usually dial down to smaller single hook flies (small for me is like a size 4). plenty of flash always.
