

Subject: : Conservation

Topic: : bellefonte hatchery

Re: bellefonte hatchery

Author: : nymphingmaniac

Date: : 2013/10/21 19:05:10

URL:

You guys don't know (may be you do) the worst of the development plans. The fields next to the new prison along I99 near the bellefonte I99 interchange has been deemed a enterprise/development zone for business. There is no known plans for the discharge of nasties, but the big threat is thermal pollution! Most of that water draining from roofs and blacktop will go into storm drains. Right now it drops on fields and works its way down the canyon through the ground purifying, neutralizing and cooling it.

<http://www.cbicc.org/news/newsarticledisplay.aspx?ArticleID=173>

<http://www.centrecountyidc.org/Buildings/BennerCommercePark.aspx>

Second, the titan energy park along logan branch in bellefonte is being sold with the promise of an onsite waste water treatment and plentiful spring water. Guess who they cater to? The energy industry. Some of the partners are involved in gas extraction

finally, read the post on slab cabin too