

Subject: : Fly Fishing Locations

Topic: : Fishing creek columbia county

Re: Fishing creek columbia county

Author: : afishinado

Date: : 2013/10/22 5:40:59

URL:

Quote:

Keith wrote:

I have just taken a liking to fishing this past season and have done very well on fishing creek. I don't like staying in the easily accessible areas but would rather walk the creek. Most posts I have seen are from 2009. I've come across some heavily posted areas along this creek and was wondering if I am able to fish them if not going past high water marks. Have they deemed this creek navigable yet? some of the areas I speak of are bartholomew camp ground,north of forks bridge a ways up creek after it bends away from 487,north of zehners bridge,and above Benton high school near golf course. Are any of these areas fishable as long as I stay in water?thanks

No. Fishing Creek has not been legally deemed navigable. You cannot (legally) access the stream in posted areas.

Other than the Little J, which was deemed navigable recently, and the major rivers in PA, no stream (that I'm aware of anyway) can be accessed below the high water mark.

Fish unposted areas of the stream and try asking permission to fish in areas that are posted.

BTW, it is a nice stream.