I've been using Allen hooks since shortly after I started tying. The more expensive ones seemed a little sharper at times, and more consistent (I've gotten some Allen hooks with eyes that weren't completely closed), but Allen hooks have been great and really cheap. Shipping is generally free from them, they also have lots of tying beads and tools at reasonable prices. You can get discount fly boxes if you buy enough hooks (I just got 3 for free after putting in a $60 order - not excellent quality, but they work fine), and if you subscribe to their email list you'll know when they run their specials. I love their half price hook and bead specials!
