A buddy and I fished a native stream with brookies and browns in it yesterday evening in central PA. We found some redds with fish on them but also some without fish. Some holes that we thought for sure we would spot fish we did not but picked up a few in gentle flow water. Also, in the lower section of the stream, we found a bull brookie following and teasing to femails. It was weird, but it seemed like different sections of the stream were further along than others.
