The Lehigh River in the gorge is, without the slightest bit of doubt, the hardest river to wade I've ever stepped foot in.

Ever.

Anywhere.

You can't even walk along the bank on dry rocks without stumbling.

Absolutely unreal.

I tried to fish along the banks in Lehigh Tannery and slipped on the rocks. Right into the water and a few contusions to boot. It is a serious river and one that should be taken that way. The rocks are the size of bowling balls and slippery. Some great fishing, but you gotta get to 'em safely...
