I think it's my hooks that are labeled wrong. I didn't buy them very long ago and Allen had a 50% off sale right after I bought them so

I haven't even really used them much. But after checking them out yesterday my #22's are 320's which are 1x and the 14's are labeled 305's but I'm thinking they are 300's or 320's as well. I found 2 egg type hooks in the 50 pack of 14's. If that got by them then a bad label could've gotten by as well. Mine also have a special label with the evening hatch name and logo on them. If they do special labels for every fly shop I'm sure they could easily screw it up. You must be right though because my 1x #22 is only very slightly longer than my tmc 100#22. And I mean just barely longer, only like the thickness of the wire longer.
